Appendix 32A
Tribal Consultation and Engagement Log

This appendix is the Tribal Consultation and Engagement Log that California Department of Water Resources (DWR) prepared to support the analysis in Chapter 32, Tribal Cultural Resources.

32A.1 Summary

DWR used a variety of media and venues to communicate, discuss, and collaborate with Tribes.

DWR regularly maintained the Delta Conveyance Project Tribal Engagement website to provide information on the various Tribal engagement activities for the Delta Conveyance Project (project) that were occurring outside of government-to-government consultation, including links to presentations and other materials as applicable.

Several meeting formats were used and a meeting log is included in this appendix as Table 32A-1. DWR hosted technical working group meetings that focused on the Tribal cultural resource identification process and sharing information regarding potential Tribal cultural resources, area of interest mapping meetings that provided technical geographic information system (GIS) support to consulting Tribes who requested this assistance, and ethnographic mapping meetings to discuss DWR and Tribal data related to ethnographic research and/or records searches. DWR provided GIS data and shapefiles reflecting the outcome of these mapping meetings. In addition, DWR provided weekly, bimonthly, or quarterly project updates to Tribes that included general project updates, updated project GIS when available, and information about public meetings where DWR would be presenting information on the project.

Additional materials were prepared and provided by DWR to consulting Tribes to aid in the communication of project timelines and initiatives including fact sheets, identification steps for Tribal cultural resources, bibliographies, plant and animal lists, project ethnographic data, question sheets for Tribes, and draft meeting notes. At the request of some Tribes, non-disclosure agreements were prepared and provided, and DWR maintained secure and confidential SharePoint sites with Tribes, as requested, to share information. DWR also participated in, or hosted, numerous informational meetings with individual Tribes or Tribal organizations in 2020 and 2021.

After January 2021, the frequency of meetings with consulting Tribes increased. Throughout the preparation of the Draft EIR, DWR provided consulting Tribes with updates on the CEQA schedule to maintain transparency about DWR goals for consultation including the identification of Tribal cultural resources, potential project impacts on known or potential Tribal cultural resources, and mitigation for project impacts on known or potential Tribal cultural resources. DWR facilitated the discussion of Tribal cultural resource impacts and mitigation by sharing summarized documentation of what DWR learned from Tribes during consultation regarding identification of resources with cultural value to each Tribe. DWR also coordinated site visits with interested Tribes to parcels that DWR had obtained temporary access to and that overlapped with the project footprint. DWR also shared preliminary information on various resource analyses that may be associated with the Delta Tribal Cultural Landscape.

In some cases, based on Tribal interest, representatives from the project design team were invited to consultation meetings to talk with Tribes about the proximity of mapped archaeological or ethnohistorical locations relative to project features. These discussions informed the design team regarding a range of options for adjusting the design to avoid or reduce the likelihood of affecting such resources, as feasible (pending field verification of the precise location of cultural materials).
