Project Description

The project involves the removal of approximately 80 acres of end-of-life prune orchard on the PATH Property and the on-site processing of orchard biomass into biochar using a low-emissions, controlled thermal processing system (e.g., carbonizer). Generated biochar will be crushed as needed and reapplied to agricultural soils on the project site as a soil amendment.

The purpose of the project is to improve soil health, sequester carbon, reduce emissions associated with traditional orchard disposal methods, and support sustainable agricultural land management. Project beneficiaries include the landowner, surrounding agricultural operations, and the broader community through improved air quality and climate benefits.
